A Fast One, Says Kirk
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

LOS ANGELES, May 17—Urgent talk about forcing the United States into the League of Nations, through the backdoor, known as the World Court, surprised you.
Not one of the "statesmen, philanthropists, prosperous industrialists, internationalists" and others that advocate the World Court for Uncle Sam would accept its decisions for themselves.
They would say:
"No thanks for MYSELF, I prefer a plain United States Court."

The Carnegie Foundation, with many millions piled up,
said to be working for the World Court, would not trust its own millions or other interests to any World Court decision.

The United States representatives on the World Court heretofore have been overhauled outvoted by other judges, appointed by nations now engaged in swiftly ending this country out of ten thousand million dollars, lost in war. Who is foolish enough to think that World Court judges, in matters affecting the United States, would be any more honest than the nations appointing them? Are not ten billions enough? Or must we lose ten more through World Court decisions?

Any American in favor of the League of Nations and the World Court must be doubtful of his country's ability to manage its own affairs, and is not MUCH of an American.

Brilliant sunshine flooding
this State today, as usual, reminds you that the quality of wine depends on soil and sunshine. SUNSHINE, especially.
You can prepare and improve the soil, but not the sunshine.
Thomas Jefferson advised Americans wisely when he recommended light wines. As the best promoters of true temperance.

You should inform yourself concerning the magnificent wines produced in the State of California.

Jefferson was obliged to import wine from France, and the British here gets his wine from Portugal. Americans can and SHOULD get all their wines from American vineyards.
California is the greatest vineyard in the world is here. Every fine wine is grown from the light red and white wines to the heaviest port and sherry. Generations ago experienced cultivators of the vine came here from Switzerland and France, bringing with them cuttings from the best Old World vineyards.

Americans should save the heavy duty on foreign wines, and use more of the native courage American wine-growers by using American wines.
Excellent wines are produced in many of our states, New York, Delaware, Ohio, among others, but the great wine State is CALIFORNIA.

If you drink anything containing alcohol you can drink nothing better, as Thomas Jefferson told you long ago, and intelligent doctor will tell you today, than good light wine, red wine especially, diluted with water, through which the meal, with perhaps a small wineglass per glass, can be drunk. The French take that, because "it keeps the blood in the stomach where it is needed for digestion, for at least half an hour after the end of the meal."

Clarence Lindner of the San Francisco Examiner, who works harder and longer for his paper than the well known Biblical gentleman did for his wine, reminds you that wine has been made in California for more than 100 years. The padres, missionaries from Spain, brought their vines with them and planted them behind the adobe walls of their lonely outpost missions.

ROOSEVELT IN DRIVE TO END JOBLESS COMES GETS 10 TO 20 YEARS

Vast Program Drafted for Action by Present

Washington, May 15 (INS)—
The 73d Congress, first in the Roosevelt administration, has enacted more far-reaching legislation than any Congress in history.

It has revolutionized the monetary system, set up the NIRA, the AAA, and a score of other alpa-betical components of the new deal.
But if President Roosevelt has his way its successor, the 74th, to be elected in November, and the last Congress of the first Roosevelt administration will do more.
President Roosevelt expects to present to Congress before the day is over a munitions message. It is guaranteed that it will be addressed to the 74th, and to the country which is to elect its personnel. What he is to propose can be debated and fought over in the expiring 73d Congress, but the campaign already under way.
In this message, Mr. Roosevelt will call attention to the appalling unemployment situation which still gripes the country.

Testimony and Picture on Page 6
By WIN BROOKS

Dedham Court House, May 18—Joseph Millen, father of the brothers on trial with Abe Faber and Murton, was suddenly seized by a deputy sheriff in the courtroom today.
Millen was sitting in the front row of spectators a few feet from the prisoner's cage nearest Irving Millen, who battled his guards for freedom at the jail a week ago today. Deputy Sheriff William Lynch walked over and ran his hands over his clothing.
A large bundle of papers was found in one pocket. Nothing was taken from Millen, and he was permitted to retain his seat, the action going unexplained.
The trial itself, nearing the end of its fifth week with a Saturday recess in prospect, was productive today of bitter conflict and heartthrobs, new charges and new claims, as the defense continued its efforts to prove insanity.
Murs Millen, alleged leader of the machine gunning bank bandits who were charged in the Lynn Parsonage trial last January.

LEADS MACHINE GUN GANG IN HOLDUP IN FLINT, MICH.

BULLETIN
Flint, Mich., May 18—Driven from his remote hideout in southwestern Wisconsin by a slowly-closing cordon of federal agents and police, John Dillinger hid the trail of crime again today to lead a band of five men and one woman in the holdup of the Citizens Commercial and Savings Bank here, fleeing with loot estimated between $25,000 and $35,000.

Dillinger was definitely identified by Kirk Roland, Flint druggist, as the leader of the machine gun band which invaded the bank, and was tentatively identified by bank officials.

"It was Dillinger," declared Roland. "I recognized him by the scar on his face."
The druggist, who went to the bank on business, also promptly identified Dillinger as the leader of the raiders from a photograph of the desperado shown him by police.

Bank officials were not quite so positive in their identification, but said the leader of the band tallied with descriptions given them of Dillinger from general appearance, height and weight.

"I am not familiar with Dillinger's appearance," Harry Stayn, bank manager said.
"But descriptions and photographs shown me by police certainly fitted the man who I directed the holdup."

Roland had gone into the bank on business, he told police, and had taken a pistol with him, since he was standing at the wickets inside the bank lobby, when suddenly a band of five men burst in, armed with machine guns, and said it was a submachine gun.

The man who held it was John Dillinger, a notorious bank robber, who had been seen on his face and the twisted grin which he wore when he was about to shoot.
At the same moment another bandit, holding a pistol, seized my shoulder and tripped me. I fell back and saw under my table. Dillinger put his foot on the call of my leg.
"Don't move!" he said. "If I feel your muscles move I'll let you see him."
He pressed the gun into my back,
I saw six or seven other people around on the floor, including one girl, who, I later learned, was abducted.
I saw another bandit running up the stairs from the lobby, shouting "Get the big dog out!
Get the big dog out!"

QUERIES BREAK DOWN MEN; THEY TALK

Owner of Auto Named After Police Fail to Win Facts

By Universal Service
Los Angeles, May 18.—New drama, and a new aid to the forces of the law in the sensational William F. Cottle kidnapping case were disclosed today and the hero of this added chapter in the thrilling story is none other than Arthur Brisbane, the nation's most famous reporter.

To Mr. Brisbane's credit was placed freely today by Sheriff Eugene Biscailus and Capt. W. J. Bright of the sheriff's homicide squad, for obtaining the information that led to the arrest of Clyde Stoddard, suspected of having a hand in the kidnap plot.

BOUGHT ONE ANSWER
On Wednesday when Brisbane was about to interview the confessed kidnappers, Jimmy Kirk, Larry Kerrigan and Ray Williams, Sheriff Biscailus and Capt. Bright confided to Mr. Brisbane that they wanted from the trio an answer to this question:

"Who is the owner of the Ford V-8 car found in the garage of the kidnap prison at La Cienega?"

Mr. Brisbane nodded understandingly. Mildly, he began his interrogation of Kirk, Kerrigan and Williams. His questions were incisive, framed and sharp as a surgeon's knife.

To answer them, the kidnappers were forced to this: Query followed query, Mr. Brisbane's curiosity seemed insatiable. Expertly, persistently, he led the prisoners on, gaining their confidence, shattering their "front" of hard-boiled reticence.

PROBED MAN'S MIND

He asked Kirk about his wife and child. Incisively, he probed into the workings of the man's mind. Like an artisan erecting a building, Brisbane constructed a psychological trap. He caught the mood of the kidnapper's state of mind and played upon it, calmly, but incessantly.

Kirk was mentally exhausted. The barriers were down. He was unable to offer any resistance to the barrage of questions coming so coolly, each a masterpiece of construction.

Suddenly, Mr. Brisbane hesitated. The trap was set, Capt. Bright was quick to take advantage of the comment.

"Who owns that car?" he demanded.

STODDARD IS NAMED

Before he knew what he was doing, Kirk blurted out Stoddard's name.

Bright and Biscailus nodded. They were satisfied.

And the man whose pertinent questions sometimes have made them in high places squirm, now placidly on with his interview. Capt. Bright declared today:

"Ever since his arrest we had been attempting to get Kirk into the frame of mind that Mr. Brisbane brought about in less than an hour of calm, steady questioning."

"If he had not chosen to become the greater writer and editor that he is, Mr. Brisbane, it seems to me, would have made a marvelous criminologist."

Davis Couple Sails for Honeymoon at Sea

Dwight F. Davis, Jr., son of the former Secretary of War and Governor-General of the Philippines and his bride, the former Dorothy E. Gay, were on the high seas today bound for a honeymoon trip to Europe.

The couple were married yesterday afternoon at the Church of the Resurrection, New York, by Dr. William T. Thayer, former headmaster of St. Mark's School, Southboro, officiating.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at Sherry's.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Otto Gay, of New York and Southampton. The family formerly lived in Boston.

She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dumas, of Boston, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Ebenezer Gay, also of this city. She is a niece of Walter Gay, of Pontchartrain, France, well known painter, and Howard Gay, of Boston.

The bridegroom is the son of Dwight F. Davis and the late Mrs. Davis, of Washington. He prepared at St. Mark's and was graduated from Harvard in 1930.

The couple are ardent tennis enthusiasts and have played in the Meadow Brook tennis tournaments at Southampton, N. Y. The bridegroom's father is the donor of the Davis Cup, famed international tennis trophy.

On their return from their European honeymoon, the couple plan to make their home in New York.

BONDS N RIOT PUT AT $1000; 2 ARE HELD

Court Rebukes 8 for Hiding Names; Trial Set for Wednesday

With his courtroom under heavy police guard, Judge Charles S. Sullivan of the Charlestown municipal court today held 18 persons, Harvard and Technology students amongst them, in $1000 bail each for a hearing next Wednesday on charges arising out of the anti-demonstration in City square.

Each of them was accused of inciting a riot, disturbing the peace and obstructing foot travel in the pitched battle with the police. Elizabeth Sheehan, another of the riot prisoners, was held on a charge of molesting, while a 16-year-old Roxbury Memorial high school boy must face the juvenile session tomorrow who answered counts of inciting a riot, disturbing the peace and obstructing foot travel.

FEAR NEW OUTBREAK
Abie Klein, still another of the defendants, will also have to answer a charge of attempting to rescue a police prisoner. All pleaded not guilty to the charges and requested a continuance. The high bail was set at the request of the police.

"We understand that another and a bigger demonstration is planned for Sunday when the German ambassador will visit the cruiser Karlsruhe at the navy yard," Capt. James E. Delaney of headquarters told the court.

"Heavy bail may keep some of these people out of that disturbance, and may even cause it to be called off."

Demonstrations in sympathy for the prisoners, which were feared by the police, failed to materialize outside the courthouse, but the corridors of the building were crowded with friends and partisans of the defendants. However, the crowd was orderly in the presence of the special police guard.

WOMAN NEAR COLLAPSE

Eight of the prisoners drew the fire of Judge Sullivan when they refused to give Probation Officer William D. Connelley names, ages, address and other facts.

"I am inclined to increase your bail substantially if you do not answer Mr. Connelley's questions," he said after the eight refused to call them to the bench.

Mary Seilin, one of the prisoners, almost collapsed during the session. Court officers removed her from the lineup and placed her in a chair. She recovered her composure after being given a glass of water.

Those arrested gave their names as follows:

BRITAIN READY FOR ACTION IN FAR EAST

Willing to Aid U. S. in Checking Japanese, Commons Told

By Associated Press
London, May 18.—Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, declared today that Great Britain is not pledged to "preserve" the integrity of China and will not participate in direct sanctions against Japan or any other power in other parts of the world unless the United States gives its full co-operation.

Reaffirming Great Britain's determination to "respect" China's political integrity, Sir John asserted:

"Great Britain has never signed any treaty to preserve the territorial integrity of China."

Referring to the demands of some of the opposition that Great Britain embark on a policy of economic sanctions in an effort to forestall any war, the foreign secretary declared:

"Economic sanctions cannot be applied without the aid of war. And we cannot undertake any serious economic action or effective action of this type unless the United States co-operates."

PLEAS FOR UNCLE SAM
Simon praised the United States aid to the League of Nations "which I hereby gratefully and publicly recognize," he said. He intimated that Great Britain was willing to participate in an international policy of sanctions (that is, reprisals against treaty violations in specific cases) should the United States, as well as other nations interested, agree formally.

Charges that Japan is planning to carve out of Chinese territory a "Mandchukuo" number one, made on the floor of the House of Commons. The charges were aired by Sir Stafford Cripps during debate on foreign affairs.

Asserting that Great Britain through "vacillation and weakness" is helping Japan's hand in China, he suggested the co-operation of Britain, Russia and the United States in a program aimed at halting Japanese expansion in the Far East.

Sir Stafford added that Britain "will not forego realities regarding securities for the integrity of China and Britain either is in league with Japan or turning a benevolent eye on her operations."

CONSUL ISSUES
VISA FOR 12
UNDER ORDERSMadrid Officials Go to Aid of American

Student Party

Manuel Nevill, French consul in Madrid, today issued visas to the 12 American students and girls who had sought in vain to gain his permission to go to France.

Students of the Smith and Columbia-Barnard, seven of the girls were from Massachusetts. They had won their battle with Nevill without seeing a single cablegram. They had, though yesterday he insisted that they must obtain evidence of good conduct from the French consul in their home cities before he would grant them visas.

The visas are ready for the girls at any time, the consul suddenly announced today.

Cables from Paris indicated that his sudden change of attitude was the result of orders from his superior to "forget the red tape" and grant the visas at once.

His surrender today came after officials of the Foreign Students Department of the University of Madrid had called on him in behalf of the American girls. The girls have just completed a short course at the University, and planned to take up temporary studies in France.

Although informed by the director of the American group that the conflict was over, Curtis Jordan, United States consul at Madrid, said he is still awaiting a letter of explanation from the French consul.

Nevill is reported to have declared he was merely applying regulations which have existed for some time but not until now in force.

The girls are Dorothy Harpner, Helen Hubert, Betty Stradman, Helen McIndoe and Janice Kessale, all of Boston; Esther Sylvia of Gloucester, Margaret Drago, Northampton; Betty Foster, Concord, N. H.; Ann Quindry, New York; Margaret Bloomer, Pittsburgh; Catherine Jones, Beverly Hills, Cal., and Helen Irving, Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank McIndoe of Boston, N. H., parents of Helen McIndoe, were inclined to consider it an example of opera bouffe which would be adjusted immediately.

Other parents felt the same way and at Northampton the general consensus among Smith College officials was that the matter was one of "red tape" which would be remedied shortly.

Roosevelt Prepares Big Drive to Aid Jobless

confronts the country, despite the NRA and the various other steps that have been taken to ameliorate it. At the peak of the depression, it is estimated there were approximately 13,000,000 unemployed workers in the United States. The American Federation of Labor, whose figures are as reliable as any and better than most, estimates there are still 10,000,000 jobless.

Such being the case, Mr. Roosevelt is going to ask the Congress to take such action as to elect it just what it is to be done to meet this situation on a long-range basis.

He will contend there is no sudden cure-all for this unemployment situation and the social misery and privation that follow in its wake.

Therefore, he is going to meet it on a long-range and semi-permanent basis, and to that end he plans to propose remedies which can be smoldered over before the Senate-Fourth Congress meets next January.

Among the remedies he will propose for study are:

- 1—A mandatory shorter work week throughout industry, about the general lines of the pending 30-hour bill.
- 2—A permanent system of unemployment relief.
- 3—Federal unemployment insurance.
- 4—Federal old age pensions, similar to those now obtaining in some states.
- 5—A long-range federal housing program, designed to improve living conditions, and end the slums and slumps in the construction industry which have characterized the last quarter century.
- 6—Some sort of federal health insurance.

The President will not request any specific in the passage of such a program, nor is he expected to commit himself to any particular scheme or measure.

The 73d Congress, he considers, has been an emergency Congress. Its work has been chiefly to enact measures designed to meet an emergency situation, and he realizes that some of its enactments have been without thorough debate and mature consideration.

He wants the 74th Congress to be more deliberate. Congress, he believes, should take into consideration the long-range social remedies than the emergency remedies which the 73d has been called upon to provide. For he believes that it is time to set up a permanent or semi-permanent program.

Kidnapers

Tucson, Ariz., May 18—Eighteen distinct fingerprints, a half-ton letter from Chicago and a description of the man who bought the foodstuffs found in the metal cabinet which held June Robles for 19 days, tonight provided clues that may result in an arrest of the kidnapers within 48 hours.

Threats to lynch the abductors of the 16-year-old school girl continued today. One suspect was in custody and several under surveillance.

The latrine fingerprints were discovered on the sticky, dusty jars of jam and bottles of grape juice by George Egan, identification expert of the Department of Justice, who arrived here today by plane from Washington.

A number of the fingerprints immediately were attributed to the bureau of identification in Washington.

Authorities obtained from a worker, whose identity was not disclosed, a detailed description of a "salty man" who bought the cabinet of fruit and other foodstuffs crammed into the desert grave for the little victim's sustenance.

The grocer said the purchaser of the food was a stranger.

June posed for newspaper photographers as she told the story of her hard visit to the "artificial coffin" site.

"That's where the man showed me and made me stay," the girl said, as she pointed to the desert grave.

"There were lots of ants and bugs there. I don't see any now, but I guess they came after the oranges and jam."

One of the guarded clues in the case was a half-ton letter postmarked from Chicago, which was found in the six-foot pit where the child was imprisoned.

Scattered across the misty waste were rumble numbers and then the notation, "South Myers street, Tucson." The letter is to be subjected to a microscopic examination in the hope the numbers can be traced to a specific address.

Investigators were assigned to check a number of houses on Myers st.

expected to bring back a considerable sum of money.

When the thugs entered he attempted to draw his gun.

"Dillinger put his machine gun against my forehead and put his foot on top of mine," Roland said.

"He told me: 'If I feel a muscle move in your foot I'll let you have it.'"

"All through the holdup we stood like that—one with my hand reaching back toward my gun pocket, and Dillinger with the machine gun pressed against my forehead and his foot clamped down on mine."

"I never moved."

"I'm positive it was Dillinger. I looked into his face all the time the other guy was climbing into the cage and getting the money."

The thugs, led by the man believed to be Dillinger, drove up to the bank in two cars. One man remained outside in each car, and one of the cars sat a woman.

Each lookout hid a machine gun across his lap.

The gang leader took up his position near the bank door, where his machine gun, pressed against Roland's head, still commanded the entire interior of the bank. Eight bank patrons and four employees were forced to lie on the floor.

Some of the thugs pulled the cashier's cage and took the loot.

The money—an unusually large sum in cash—was being held at the bank to cash payroll checks for Chevrolet plant workers.

The license plates used on the two cars were aluminum or steel plates, police said.

Where a platoon of brawny Everett policemen failed today in a wild backyard pursuit, a battered, shinning little coupe betrayed four prominent Everett youths and sent them into Malden court, three of them as accused burglars.

Because of the prominence of the families, police withheld news of the arrests and they were held in the night time, and were held in 1900 for a hearing next Thursday.

Frederick, 22, of Clark st., Everett, was charged with driving the automobile number plates from Guy

Starved Hearts Respond to Kiss

Little June Robles' first worry was for her mother when she was found in the coffin-like abode in the desert near Tucson, Ariz., where kidnapers had taken her for 19 days. Mrs. Fernando Robles, the mother, was near collapse over the loss and danger threatening her loved one. The long days and nights of starvation love seem climaxed in the kiss that June is giving her mother. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

FILM OFFERS FOR JUNE ROBLES

Tucson, Ariz., May 18—June Robles, 16-year-old kidnap victim, has received screen and stage offers of from $750 to $1,500 a week. The offers were made by long-distance telephone, by telegram and by agents who came here in person.

William Connolly, 18, Reddy st., Dorchester, was killed today, when he was hurled from an automobile in which he was riding and run over by the machine which had struck Connolly's car. Connolly did a few minutes after he had been admitted to the City Hospital. Virtually every bone in his body was crushed.

The accident occurred when the machine, operated by Edward Anderson, of Milton st., Dorchester, and in which Connolly was riding, collided with another car operated by Mrs. Edith L. French of Elm st., Braintree.

According to the police Anderson was going along on the highway, when he saw the car, operated by Mrs. French, came out of the intersection and struck Anderson's machine.

Rites Tomorrow

Private and simple funeral services were held today in Reading for the Nanauket Lightship, who died on board the White Star liner Olympic after the collision between the liner and the lightship last Tuesday.

His wife, his aged parents, and his 11-year-old son, Raymond, and a few friends, were the mourners.

Two more of the Nanauket's dead will be buried tomorrow. Services for Justin F. Richmond, clerk, Commonwealth of South Boston, will be held at Waterman Chapel, Commonwealth ave., and services for Anthony Montreuil will be held in New Bedford.

CAPTAIN ARREST

Capt. George Bratthwaite of the lightship, who was rescued by the crew of the Olympic, was unable to attend the services of his chief engineer because of the injuries he suffered from the crash.

His wife revealed today that the sea took their little boy many years ago.

"He was eight years old and we were crossing the ocean," she said. "A hurricane came up and he died. We left him in the ocean."

She does not believe that her husband will retire from the sea. She said: "He wouldn't be happy."

"I don't know how long it will be before he is well again. He gets dizzy spells every once in a while."

MATE RECOVERING

Clifton E. Mosher, first mate of the lightship, is recovering from the effects of exposure and declares he will return to duty shortly.

In Provincetown, John E. Perry, declared he is willing to go back to the lightship despite the protests of his bride of three months and his motive for "the lightest of many years ago."

"This is the first time," Clifton said, "that so serious a disaster has occurred in our lightship service, and all our people will be deeply interested in learning the real cause underlying this new tragedy of the sea."

Clifford (R-Mass.) has filed in the U. S. House Record a demand for the fullest investigation of the collision with the loss of seven lives.

LEHMAN'S VETO STIRS UP ROW ON OATH

By Universal Service
Albany, N. Y., May 18.—Gov. Lehman has reiterated his conviction that the veto bill requiring teachers, instructors and professors in public and private schools and colleges to take an oath of loyalty to the nation and state is unnecessary and, in part, redundant.

The governor vetoed the measure Wednesday. He said it is similar to the oath of allegiance required of civil employees, which includes teachers, instructors and professors in public schools, when they enter the service. As concerns teachers and others in private and parochial schools and in private colleges and universities, the governor said:

"There would seem to be no reason to require the taking of an oath of affirmation in such cases. The position of a public school teacher paid from the public treasury and a teacher in a private or parochial school, a college or university, is certainly not the same."

BILL NEEDED, SAYS IVES
To those considering Assemblyman Ives related:
"The governor is wrong. The bill is not superfluous or unnecessary. The terrible opposition and the nature of that opposition prove that it was essential to constitute the best argument against the charge that it was unnecessary."

"Moreover the present civil service oath is only taken once—when the applicant gets the job. Under my bill the oath would be required of every teacher each time he or she changed positions. Why, some of the teachers don't even remember that they ever took the oath."

"There was no sound reason for that vote. I can't understand it. The Governor is going to have some explaining to do before election day."

EDUCATORS GUIDE HIM
The governor said he had been guided in his veto by "many of the leading educators of the United States," as well as the Public Education Association, the New York City Bar Association, and the State Educational Association. Among the educators he listed Dr. Graves of the State Department of Education and President Ryan of the New York City Education Department.

He quoted the section of the civil service law requiring all persons employed or civil divisions or cities, except in the labor clause to take and file an oath of affirmation. The law reads that the failure of an employee to file such an oath "shall terminate his employment until such oath shall be taken."

The governor pointed out teachers are listed under the unclassified section of the civil service law. He added:

"I have before me copies of the New York City application blanks for teachers in elementary schools and in high schools, training schools and principals and superintendents. At the bottom is appended the constitutional oath which must be subscribed to and filed in the office of the city clerk."

MEASURE IS FLEXIBLE
Meeting the governor's objections that the bill fails to state whom should administer the oath under the veto bill, the assemblyman said it was purposely made flexible in order to make it possible for any responsible authority, such as a school principal or a superintendent of an education board to administer it, if so continued.

"Objections have been made that an oath of allegiance would have no meaning to certain professors from abroad in our universities. First of all I want to point out that the bill in no way provides for an oath of allegiance as such."

"Its purpose, rather, is to evoke a pledge of support for our constitution. It does not call on foreign professors to defend this country. That is neither expressed nor implied. It seems to me that if any foreign professor has any mental reservations against supporting this country in its general theory of government, that fact would constitute sound reason for refusing to employ him."

"The loyalty of a man who teaches our youth and children should never be questioned."

THREATENS SUIT
Aaron H. Kaufman, attorney for the Haywood Brothers Trust, 686, Veterans of Foreign Wars, said:

"We will appeal directly to the Board of Education for a ruling giving the principal of each school discretionary power to administer the oath to teachers. Any teacher who did not subscribe to it would be summarily dismissed. If no action is taken we will go to the courts to see what can be done about it here."

Arthur Bowie, president of the New York Principals' Association, said:

"Another bill expressing the original principles should be drawn up at once to meet the governor's objections. Any school teachers who do not approve of the present day form of American government and who wish to utilize the public schools as a field for their campaigns against our constitution should resign or be put out of service."

ROOSEVELT TO LEAD IN ARMS EMBARGO

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1934, International News Service)
Washington, May 18.—This government will shortly move to declare an embargo against the shipment of arms and munitions to the warring republic of Paraguay and Bolivia, it was learned on high authority today.

President Roosevelt believes the time has arrived when this nation should clean its hands of any allegations that it is benefiting in any way from the South American dispute over the Gran Chaco.

Not only is this government prepared to co-operate with the League of Nations in an international embargo, but it is predicted the United States will lead the way by acting independently before the league plan goes into effect.

NATIONS SOUNDED OUT
This government already has sounded out Latin countries contiguous to Paraguay and Bolivia as to whether they would follow suit if the United States declared an embargo. Some have replied they felt the matter rested in the hands of the League, which has been directing peace efforts.

The first step in the move to declare an embargo may be either a message to Congress by the President asking for quick passage of legislation authorizing him to act, or action by administration leaders in the House to bring the pending arms embargo resolution up for immediate consideration.

HOLD UP IN SENATE

This resolution, already passed by the Senate, has been held up because of State department disapproval of an amendment by Senator Johnson (R.) of California directing the President to make the embargo applicable to all parties to a dispute rather than permit him to impose it on any one nation.

The State department feels disavowal power in the hands of the President would prove a powerful diplomatic weapon in bringing pressure to bear to prevent aggression by any one country in the future.

By Associated Press.
Geneva, May 18.—The proposal to clamp an embargo on arms shipments to Paraguay and Bolivia was referred to jurists by the League of Nations Council today.

Costa Duran of Bolivia told the council the embargo—urged to end the warfare in the Chaco Boreal—would be unjust to Bolivia from juridical, geographical and political standpoints.

Ramon Caballero de Beldoya of Paraguay declared the embargo necessitated beforehand a determination of the aggression and said he believed the jurists should examine the question of responsibility in the Chaco fighting.

The council voted today to withdraw the league plan of economic and financial assistance to Liberia, Capt. Anthony Eden, British Lord Privy seal, declared:

"Liberia has failed so gravely to observe the obligations of a member of the league that the league would be entitled to consider her expulsion."

Maxim Litvinoff, Russian commissar for foreign affairs, arrived here unexpectedly today to consult with League of Nations leaders on the question of disarmament and possibly the Soviet Union's entry into the league.

It was reported Russia was alarmed over the recurrent rumors that the world disarmament conference will be allowed to collapse.

Alley Cats With Candid

The Candid Camera man hopped into the big Alley Cat Show in the back yard of the Boston House, in Tyler st. Lots of people there with their cats. He snapped Miss Margaret Starbuck, of the Animal Rescue League. She was a judge. Mickey won first prize necklace—in three colored cat contest.

This kitty cat got a little attention before it was time for the judge's decision. Miss Mabel Lafayette, Arlington, member of the Boston Cat Club, also a judge, is making slight test before giving her opinion.

SCHOOL PRANKS COST BIG SUM

Broken glass in school buildings, just one item in an amazing record of vandalism, cost the taxpayers last year more than $30,000, it was revealed today in a report of William W. Dummer, superintendent of school buildings.

And this year, he added, promises to show a larger figure if steps are not taken by parents to warn children not to destroy property.

Eight fires, three of them known to have been incendiary, cost the people nearly $10,000 more, Supt. Dummer pointed out.

Most of the huge bills are the result of malicious mischief that could be curbed in the home. Police and the courts have given co-operation, he added.

Roxbury Club to Install Officers

John M. Bhadury, newly-elected president and his suite of officers, will be installed tonight by the Roxbury Progressive Club at the Norfolk House in Eliot square.

Officers included in the suite are: vice-presidents, William H. Singer, Arthur McElwain, Mrs. Horace Greene and Mrs. Agnes Shore; secretary, Mrs. Ethel Tansick; treasurer, Mrs. Evelyn Fitzgerald; assistant secretaries, Anna Duffy and Rita Hurley.

INSULLIAN CALL FOR LARCENY BY REMOTE CONTROL

Yesterday's narrative disclosed Insull's daring in looting Chicago in "delightful manner" as well as "painless" fashion, and his rapid development of the Middle West Utilities. Today's story reveals "the Insull system which leaves no fingerprints," and Insull's methods of larceny by remote control.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

"The Insull system leaves no fingerprints," said one Chicago detective whose specialty is burglary cases. "It's not in my line. It gets away with the goods and doesn't leave a mark to show it was in your house at all. It's larceny by remote control. Its victims have to sign an application before they can even get themselves robbed. It gives you an engraved receipt as a souvenir—and attaches a coupon that gives you the 'right' to be stung again later on."

Maybe there was reason for the detective's bitterness. Maybe his wife had invested. Most men's wives had. Some say that Samuel Insull was the greatest stock and bond salesman who ever lived. There have been other nominations—the question is debatable.

His customers were not only sold but they remained sold, in most cases. And they kept on buying. If he sold you, for instance, a preferred stock, which paid cash dividends, he would probably sell you more of it than you could pay for immediately. The idea being that you could let the dividends themselves pay off the balance. That was the money that you put in would stay in, and so would your dividends.

Or, having got your stock at a "special" price, you would find that you could not sell it at all without getting permission, because that proviso was a condition attached to the "special" price.

Famous Diva Bares Insull's Methods

The story of Rosa Raisa, famous opera star, is a vivid example. She told it recently.

"You will be a very wealthy woman," Insull said to her. Just how much pressure, or what kind of pressure, he exerted in inducing her to invest, is not revealed, but the indication is that not much pressure was needed. In those days, 1925, everybody wanted Insull securities. There was pressure enough, however, later on, as Mrs. Raisa tells it. And even in the beginning there must have been a kind of pressure, because Insull, as czar of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, was her "book."

"Mr. Insull sent a man to see me," she said, "with the proposition that I invest. I thought it an opportunity. I gave Mr. Insull a check for $100,000. He smiled and said, 'Oh, you are a rich woman. I didn't know that. You will be much richer.'"

"From time to time I put in more money, and so did Giacomo Rimini, my husband. All told, we put in about $500,000. Each year Mr. Insull showed me figures which represented, he said, my profits. Eventually he said I had profits amounting to $500,000."

"Big money?" Of course. But it was only a row of figures on a piece of paper. Mrs. Raisa thought she would like to have it in the bank. She would feel better about it.

"I told him," she says, "that I wanted to realize, at least on the profits. I told him I would take just the profits and let the original investment stand. Up to that time I had never seen my stocks. He wouldn't let me sell."

Insull Assured Her That Stock Was Safe
So she held on—or rather was held on. And the panic came in the fall of 1929—the "black panic," which everybody said was only a "technical reaction," that couldn't last long. Insull was one of those who said that. Mrs. Raisa was one of those who heard it—she said.

"I told Mr. Insull," says Mrs. Raisa, "that I would be ruined if my investments with him were wiped out. He smiled and told me there was no danger."

No danger! Throughout the year 1930 she

Great Week for Skippers

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Bed week for English skippers. One sank the Nan-tucket lifeline, which was anchored on both ends. Another ran his battle cruiser aground. He was cutting the sea and took his boat along with him.

We did better than that on land. Western police played a double header with kidnapers and won both games. Good detective work all round and makes us wonder how the Canadian Northwesters can wear red coats and still get their man.

New York City borrowed $7 million dollars. That's healthier than the good climate. Sam Dismeyer called New York the banker's cow. We'll take a pair of them.

The money stays in Washington. It's like pictures on a blackboard. You draw against it but you don't take it out of school.

Nervous?

Here is a medicine which quiets quivering nerves. . . . You eat better. . . . sleep better. 98 out of 100 women say — "It helps me."

"Before my baby was born I was run-down and nervous. My mother told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ease my nerves and prepare me for childbirth. After only a few bottles I was up and doing my work cheerfully. Childbirth was very easy, thanks to this medicine."

YOUTH FREED IN ATLEBORO DEATH

Newport, N. H., May 18.—Charles B. Phillips, 18, Charlestown youth, was back today with the mother who had been brought to court on a stretcher to testify for him and whose testimony probably freed him of a murder charge.

Phillips had been accused of shooting to death George L. Thomas, 48, a former Atleboro, Mass., electrical goods salesman. The state maintained that the youth had deliberately placed a revolver against his victim's neck and pulled the trigger.

But the defense argued that there was no motive for murder; that the shooting was accidental, and that Phillips tried to help the mother, a secret money because he was badly frightened.

The jury was only out three hours during which time it had reached the end of that period the not guilty verdict was brought in.

Kidnap Victim Returns 30 Years After Theft

Petit Rocher, N. B., May 18.—Kidnaped from his crib in 1904 and long since given up as dead by his parents, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Arsenault was restored to them today under the name of Bill Knockton.

He had suffered cruel treatment, privation and adventure during the thirty years which had intervened since he was kidnaped. He swept his aged mother and father into his arms when identification was firmly fixed in their minds—and in the minds of his relatives, his friends and his own. A birthmark over his right eye clinched his identification.

In the midst of all their happiness the reunited family recalled the kidnaping of thirty years ago—the abduction of the Arsenault little son from his crib, much in the same manner as the Lindbergh baby was taken from his crib.

A hush and cry was raised. Although the authorities did their best to find the kidnaped baby the only result was forlorn cries and grieving parents. Not a trace was found of the baby. The child evidently was kidnaped by a band of gypsies at least that is the belief today of the victim himself as well as his parents.

The returning kidnap victim—now thirty years old—could not recall his boyhood days except for a few incidents.

He said he could never forget how harshly he was treated—how he escaped from a train at a stop, and was never caught again by his captors. Raiders carried off the wandering youngster in their schooner and for some years he followed the sea.

BALL PLAYER AIDS HUNT

Then one day—some years ago—his ship put in at St. Elizabeth, Que. far across the bay of Chaleur, from here. He returned to life on shore. He was taken into the Jones family last summer when the Bonaventure (Que.) baseball team visited this village. One of the ball players on the team happened to learn of the kidnaping. He told Mrs. Arsenault of the man across the bay. She talked it over with her husband. Hopes were reborn. It was a long chance but it might be her son.

And sure enough, when she corresponded with the parish priest in St. Elizabeth he discovered that Knockton had a birthmark which resembled the birthmark on the stolen child.

Fervently the investigation proceeded and the truth was learned. It was their son. And today there isn't a happier family in all New Brunswick.

COYNE PLEADS GUILTY

charge, was arrested later for possession and attempted to pass counterfeit money and is serving a term at Deer Island for this offense.

The sixth man of the sextette appeared at the table in the Cotton Club when Solomon entered a short time before he was to die. He was still sought by police. He is John J. Moore.

Coyne's decision to retract his not guilty plea to the charges of armed robbery and murder of the crowded courtroom by surprise at today's session.

Spectators had come prepared to hear first the defense testimony by counsel for Coyne and O'Donnell and then the biting argument expected from Frank T. Davis, assistant district attorney.

When Judge Gibbs took the bench, however, Coyne was ordered to stand. He stood up in the cage, his stubby, fat figure undulating uneasily and his round face pale.

Prosecutor Davis, addressing Judge Gibbs, said:

"Your Honor, I am informed that the defendant Coyne wishes to retract his plea to the indictments against him."

A conference was called at the bench, and it was agreed that a plea of guilty to manslaughter and one of guilty to robbery would be received.

At Judge Gibbs' direction, Clerk of Court William M. Fendley then read the indictments, with the charges changed at manslaughter and robbery, and Coyne made his plea to both.

O'DONNELL ENTERS PLEA

A similar procedure was gone through with O'Donnell and he pleaded guilty to the accessory charges as reduced.

Solomon, then operator of the Coconut Grove, entered the Cotton Club for his visit to the dance and died spot early on the morning of January 24 at his own place and Joe Solomon, then the Coconut Grove orchestra leader.

Testimony during the trial brought out that Coyne and the others had entered the club some time earlier and had been drinking heavily while in the club. There was testimony that during the stay of the six and prior to "King" Solomon's arrival, someone at the table had asked:

"What time does that punk get here?"

DEFENSE CHECK-MATE

A defense check-mate for this testimony was evidence by the prosecution that Solomon had never been in the Cotton Club before and had gone there that night as a gesture of good-will toward the proprietors.

A short time after Solomon's arrival, it was testified, Burke, who had been seen with a revolver or pistol in his belt, got up from the table, walked over to Solomon's table, talked with him and then returned.

Not long afterward, Solomon left his table and walked toward the main washroom in the club, passing through the grillroom.

CONVERSATION GIVEN

There was testimony that Burke, Coyne and Kaine followed him, close behind, and that in this group said:

"Keep moving, we've got you covered."

Witnesses declared that while O'Donnell and Moore moved toward the grillroom, Burke and Coyne, with Scully and Karlson trailing, went into the washroom where Solomon, Karlson and Scully later came out.

Testimony was given by club attendants that they heard someone in the washroom say:

"You've got my money; what more do you want?"

Another voice retorted:

"You've had this coming to you for some time."

Scully and Burke were then declared to have run out of the washroom and a short time later, Solomon, his shirt-front covered with blood, came staggering out and collapsed on a table. He did not long afterward in City Hospital, and a large sum of money he carried was missing.

Less than half an hour later, two policemen in West Roxbury stopped a car in which the six men traveled the wrong way through a one-way street.

No alarm had been received then regarding the shooting, and the car was allowed to proceed.

The party went to Louisiana, where Karlson, Scully and Burke were arrested, after O'Donnell had returned to Boston and given himself up. In the first trial they named Coyne as the "trigger man" in the shooting.

Coyne was captured two months ago in Michigan City, Indiana, and at the trial just ended, O'Donnell claimed he peeped himself in naming Coyne as the actual slayer and this time, agreed with Coyne that the "trigger man" was Burke.

DIAMOND LOST

Is your diamond lost? Many diamonds are lost every year. You may have your diamond lost in a house, in your pocket, in your car, in your bag, or in your trunk. If you lose your diamond, you will be sorry. You will want to find it. You will want to get it back. You will want to know where it is. You will want to know how to find it. You will want to know how to get it back. You will want to know how to protect it. You will want to know how to keep it safe. You will want to know how to make it last. You will want to know how to make it shine. You will want to know how to make it beautiful. You will want to know how to make it perfect. You will want to know how to make it yours.

MCLEOD INSISTS HOUSE WILL ACT ON BANK BILL

By International News Service
Washington, May 18.—Attempts to adjourn Congress without enactment of legislation for relief of closed bank depositors will fail, Rep. Clarence McLeod (R) of Michigan, author of the McLeod 100 per cent pay-off bill, predicted today.

The declaration followed the successful effort of House leaders to temporarily block a vote on his bill by adjournment over the weekend.

The McLeod bill supporters pointed out their efforts toward conclusion of a petition of 145 names, to assure a vote on June 11.

"I don't think they will be able to adjourn without taking some action to relieve depositors," said McLeod. "There are three groups which were denied the right to bring important bills to the floor. They can easily prevent adjournment."

"We expect to complete our petition next week. We have 127 signers and needed only 15 when the House was suddenly adjourned. Yesterday we were informed that a number of members were coming from their offices to sign the petition. I think the leaders knew it. The petition would have been completed if the House had refused to adjourn until the usual quitting hour."

By adjourning early a vote on May 24 was prevented, since a completed petition must lie on the Speaker's desk seven legislative days before it can be called up.

The next day for calling up such petitions was May 24. Meanwhile, the House banking committee continued consideration of the bank guarantee bill, which includes an amendment enlarging authority of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. to aid depositors in closed banks.

flicts physical injury upon him. But if the victim is returned, or escapes unharmed, the penalty is life imprisonment. Under the loose and often badly applied parole laws of this state other states "life" imprisonment means freedom, in from ten to fifteen years.

But the public, demanding a "hanging for every kidnapping, should remember that the most dangerous witness against the kidnappers is their victim, and he is in their power."

If kidnappers know that the hangman is waiting for them, no matter what happens, they will, as a matter of precaution, murder their victim, to close his mouth forever rather than set him free. But if they know that his safety may mean that they escape hanging, they will protect him. His chance or survival increases many fold.

"A hanging for every kidnapping" MIGHT mean fewer kidnappings, but it would mean more kidnap victims murdered.

In the case of the three California kidnappers, Kirk, Kerrigan and Williams, now in San Quentin prison under one of the life sentences, with parole possibilities, the prisoners probably will all actually die in prison because the federal government proposes to add to the local kidnapping sentence another sentence of 45 years without parole, plus $20,000 fine for each, which will have to be worked out in prison.

When Kirk, "the brains" of the plot, heard of that, he remarked:

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

By LIEUT. L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander
Greetings, Junior Birdmen! For the last eight years many of America's largest cities have been the scene of model plane activity. New York has had its annual model plane derby conducted by Lawrence Shaw, your national director. Los Angeles has had its contests sponsored by a local playground committee. And Detroit, San Francisco, Washington, D. C. and other cities have had annual model plane arenas flying above their parks and airports in competition for coveted awards as well as contest honors and records.

But never has a nation-wide program of model plane activities been planned such as are to be unfolded to you, starting with this announcement today.

Of course we refer to the 1934 outdoor model plane contest, plans of the Junior Birdmen—today, with its more than 50,000 members enrolled in less than one month of organization, one of the largest aviation youth-movements in the entire world.

The official Junior Birdmen model plane contest rules have been six years in the making. They have been adopted at a series of actual experiments and testing at actual model plane contests in a series of cities governing the principles of the contest.

The construction of model planes and the actual flying of such contestants have been used at the largest and most successful model plane contest in the country—the official New York City model plane derby.

After many changes of these rules from year to year to conform with the wishes of contestants where possible, the new official national rules of the Junior Birdmen marked:

"The government pulled a fast one with that angle."

Kidnapers will learn of many "fast ones" if their industry persists.

The three men as they sat in prison yesterday were told by writers:

"When you reach San Quentin, advise the men coming out to keep away from kidnaping. It is the most dangerous of crimes, most thoroughly hated, absolutely certain to end in death or prison for the criminal."

"The back robber, the thief who robs a store, the burglar, are pursued by officers of the law."

"The kidnaper is hated by every one of 100,000,000 Americans and pursued by all of them. They feel that his industry threatens all of them and, what is worse, it threatens their children."

Republican papers give three and four cheers because Senator Reed of Pennsylvania has beaten Governor Pinchot in the senatorial primaries, although Reed is against President Roosevelt and Pinchot supports the New Deal.

Republicans rejoicing over that news represent the "small savors" thankfully received by Reed and Pinchot both ran as Republicans and naturally, in these doubtful days, the real Republicans, with no Roosevelt leanings, won. Wait until the thoroughly brainwashed against Republicanism, then you will know more.

COURT BACKERS DROP PLAN TO FORCE VOTE

By KENNETH CLARK
Washington, May 18 (AP)—The plan of the Supreme Court to force a vote on the constitutionality of the National Labor Relations Act has been dropped by the court's legal advisers.

Aside from a desire to put the matter before the President, the court's legal advisers agreed that the court should not force a vote on the constitutionality of the National Labor Relations Act by the Supreme Court, but rather let the matter be decided by the President.

"SHOPPING...THERE'S A REAL TEST OF NERVES, TOO, MR. BUCK!"

Listen to what Mrs. Abbot J. Copeland has to say on shopping—and nerves:

"There's no doubt in the world that healthy nerves are vital to a man who goes out and catches wild animals alive. But take it from a busy wife and mother who spends many hours each week searching through the stores— anxious to make the family budget reach as far as possible—you need healthy nerves to be a shopper, too! Tramping through miles and miles of aisles... pricing, comparing, judging quality and values... well, that's a test of anyone's nerves. 'Nerves' don't ever bother me, though. As for cigarettes, I smoke Camels. They don't upset my nerves. And I have never tasted such flavor and mildness."

How Are YOUR Nerves?

Jangled nerves are apt to visit us all. You know the signs—telephone slamming, frowning, hot words that wound others, worrying and fuming over trifles.

If you are inclined toward jumpy nerves, check up now—on your eating and sleeping, your habits of work and play. Make Camels your cigarette. They never get on your nerves.

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand.

If you have experienced the aftertaste often associated with flat-tasting cigarettes, or the "sweet" type, you will appreciate the mildness and rich flavor of Camels. And you can smoke them all you want. For Camel's costlier tobacco never jangle your nerves.

Instead of the present unimaginative backdrops and sets, there will be plastic scenery—moving picture backgrounds that will be realistic settings for the action of the play.

Reaper Takes Victim By Freak Turns of Fate

By Associated Press
New York, May 15. Death is a marionette, rolling on the street. William Abel, 35, pursued his "passion" onto the pavement yesterday. The operator of the marionette, the reaper, pulled a lever and the marionette fell. Death is a bird. Mrs. Margaret Cross was watching a sparrow. A cat pounced upon it. The sight so unnerved Mrs. Cross that she took a few drinks to forget. Drinking, she delayed getting dinner for her cab driver, Alexander. There was a quarrel, their marriage license, wheel turning, crashing...

WETMOUTH SCHOOL HONORS SPELLING CHAMPION

By THE SPELLING BEE EDITOR

So enthusiastic are the pupils of the Junior Annex School of Wetmouth, when produced the Metropolitan Boston Spelling Bee, in the person of David Andrew Ward, that an interesting function was arranged yesterday by way of letting off community buoyancy of spirits based upon the Champion's and the school's victory.

For half an hour David and the staff of a school, reception on the Junior Annex.

The teachers and in fact the entire educational system of Wetmouth are very but as enthusiastic as are these pupils.

Explained Mrs. Mabel Thomas, "Everybody has been stopping David in the halls to congratulate him and although he has already received the approval and applause of most of the children in person, we decided to take him out and grant him the pent-up ovation that was obviously expected of him by the school."

David for his personal possession of the Champion's trophy.

PRESENTED WITH GLIDE

Brief addresses by Mr. Whittle principal of the Junior Annex and by the school choir and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Various honors and distinctions are impending for the Metropolitan Boston Champion last yesterday he was formally presented with the beautiful "Jockey" book "And This Is Wetmouth" which with the guide book "And This Is Boston" has received international attention. Mr. Ward is the author of the guide books a photograph of the Champion, guide which David will have such good use for as follows:

"To the Champion of Champions, David Andrew Ward, from the author, Eleanor Kelly."

David and his mother, Mrs. George Ward, will arrive in Wetmouth on May 28 as guests of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser. On May 28, Tuesday, David will be one of 19 regional champions competing in the title of National Grade School Spelling Champion in the competition to be held in the New York City Museum.

TO MEET ROOSEVELT

Reverend $50 as a consolation prize for the Metropolitan Champion will have further opportunities of winning money for educational purposes. If he wins the title, he will receive $500. If he is second, the prize is $250. If he is third, $100. Other prizes in the great crowd are made on the basis of achievement.

LIGHT PROBE BEGINS IN WEEK

By Universal Service

Washington, May 18—With attention of $300,000 in FWA funds to the federal power commission to conduct a nation-wide investigation of electric light rates, the commission will start its inquiry next week.

Mr. Chairman Fred McManis, delayed today. A special corps of investigators will begin the task, a mammoth one, in the principal cities of the country.

Many of the rate-payers organizations have agreed to throw open their books to the federal investigators. Subpoenas will be issued to compel recalcitrant companies to submit to the inquiry, as authorized by the Norris resolution recently passed.

Advocates of power reform expect the investigation to result in widespread reduction of rates and thereby a saving of $100,000,000 a year for rate-payers.

The first official comparison of rates will be the completion of the first official comparison of rates gathered by public and private plans.

Bootleggers—Non-Alcoholic

Gasoline Pirates Form Syndicates in Biggest Racket Since Bowser—Gyp Public with Bad Gas. Evade $200,000,000 Taxes.

The National Taxpayers' Federation has already been saying that the bootlegging racket in New York is a determination of the present New York situation to permit the bootlegging racket to flourish.

A CONVOY of motor trucks, under cover of darkness, whirled through the back streets of a New Jersey city, ahead ran a curtained limousine, in which men sat with guns in their hands, ready for attack by police or hijackers.

Behind were several other cars.

At a signal the trucks split up and sped to their destinations.

A taxcab containing no passengers, but with a driver following the trucks and the escort vehicle, sped along.

The trucks were sent out by the big bootlegging syndicate of the New York city.

That tax of $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 annually are evaded by bootleggers, and that the end of prohibition this has become the nation's biggest racket.

"IT LUBRICATES AS IT DRIVES"

This Is Life by ROBERT E. ROGERS

The president of Northwestern University, Dr. Walter Dill Scott, tells us that America hasn't seen anything yet in the way of mass education. In spite of the depression and the more moderate level of expenditure which may be expected for some time to come, the demands of our population upon our institutions of higher learning have only begun. At present we have something like a million students in colleges or universities. Within 25 years, says Dr. Scott, we shall be having to take care of millions of students more than at present. Social distinction will disappear because higher education will be open to all who have ability, no matter how small their resources. And with all these numbers there will be more individual instruction than at present.

Robert E. Rogers (present and later registration in education. And to add one priceless gem of thought—"the lecturer of today will give way to television and other potential instruments of culture."

I hope with all my heart that good Dr. Scott did not say that. It seems a little too cockeyed for even a middle western educator. Presumably it is the notion of an undergraduate reporter. It sounds like such an one's conception of logic.

We in the East used to modest numbers and certain standards of accomplishment, grasp a little at all. We have, of course, what Dr. Abraham Flexner called the "cafeteria universities," but nothing cuts out the fat out of the bag by having within 25 years educational institutions will rest in the United States government and that the university will have vastened enlarged sources of income. He does not say exactly what, but it is easy to guess that he means that the support of all the institutions of higher learning, on a greatly enlarged scale, will be added to the burden borne by the federal taxpayer.

But the contrary of all this is what strikes dumb an Easterner who knows anything about education. "Social distinction will disappear," because higher education will be open to all who have ability? I agree that the distinction of a college education will disappear. As a matter of fact it has disappeared already. To quote W. S. Gilbert:

"When everyone is somebody Then no one's anybody!"

But the idea that enrollments of millions will still take ability—by any kind of definition at all—account, is preposterous. Already the question of ability has been largely lost sight of in admitting students into our great state universities and our great city universities of learning. Ask anyone who has ever taught at one of them and he will tell you—precisely and with considerable poise of language—exactly what are the standards by which the masses are graduated.

What Dr. Dill means, and being a Westerner, never thinks to say, is that everyone of the millions who are to be allowed higher education will have ability enough to undertake some of the "instructional" or vocational subjects which pass for higher education in the United States—such as chicken raising, shorthand writing, hat trimming, domestic science, hotel keeping, automobile repair, and other subjects on that long list which Flexner flattered the academic dove-cots a few years ago. Myriads of girls will be awarded the degree of Bachelor of Science for a training approximating that of the oldtime "Misses' School." The degree of Bachelor of Education will have a degree of V. M.—Master of Titerant Vending.

If this is the West's conception of education, let us hope and pray that she keep it to herself. It is hope for much in the psychology of that section. It is a system devised for herds of young people who are incapable of genuine education, but is to say intellectual training, but who, according to the West's interpretation of democracy, rate a college grade just as much as their peers who have brains. The ideal, as laid down to us lately by a U. S. congressman, is that long list which every boy and girl in the country shall stay in school until the age of 21. That involves, of course, a detachment of education and a post in the Cabinet. Just another grand, expensive, ostentatious, useless, un-American racket.

This is not education, of course. This is the very negation of education. The only thing it needed to be Dr. Scott's statement that the "new" university will be able to make the individual student the focus of all university activities. The whole plan will be drafted to serve the individual wish or taste. Education will be an individual concern. There will no longer be any attempt to turn out a reasonably homogeneous group, with the same kind of background, training, and point of view. The university is to graduate large numbers of mutually repellent particles, no two backgrounds alike. Once and for all the individual will be exalted over the organized society and he is a part.

And last, by definition, is Anarchy.

SALON OBJECTS TO KIDNAP SKIPPY

Additional indictments charging breaking and entering and larceny in the night time were also returned against Birmingham. These offenses are alleged to have been committed in Danvers and Beverly.

A wide search for Birmingham, since his break from jail has been unavailing.

JUROR QUIZZES WITNESS IN BANK TRIAL

Opposing Counsel Row
About Who Signed
Loan Register

THOMAS C. Mahoney, business manager, living in West Concord, one of the jurors sitting at the trial of Daniel C. Mahoney, indicted bank director, took a hard in asking William H. Mahoney, Federal National Bank director in 1931, a question which the latter was testifies for the government before Judge Hugh D. Cahalan, and a jury today. Mahoney said:

"I would like to know who selected the directors who signed the loan register."

Running during of defense counsel, who conducted the examination, called the witness, Mahoney, the question.

MAHONEY ANSWERS
"The man who signed the loan register was always given a pen and signed. He had no choice," testified Mahoney.

Attorney Marvin C. Taylor, of defense counsel, jumped to the fact saying:

"The bank, may it please the court, was signed by directors, who were not officers of the bank."

Irving G. McCann, for the government, asked the witness, saying, "where is no evidence of that, your honor?"

OFFICE LUXURY TOLD
Under redirect examination it was brought out that a radio was behind Mahoney's desk at the Federal National Bank, and that a "very comfortable lounge" and "some very comfortable chairs" also were in the office. The witness could not recall an electrical refrigerator being there.

Mahoney testified that he knew nothing about a check for $5,137.50, signed by Mahoney, being paid to P. S. Mahoney & Co., Boston brokerage firm, for shares of stock.

Mahoney, government witness, was shown the check and examined it, but before he could testify further regarding Mahoney's signature objection was raised by Romney Spring for defense counsel and a bench conference followed.

Col. William H. Dolan, scheduled to be taken in redirect examination by Asst. U. S. Atty. Gen. Irving G. McCann, was excused after a long conference at the bench.

RACKET BUCKS HOUSEWIVES

What police believe is a new racket aimed at housewives was revealed today in a report made by Mrs. Christina "Toots" who occupies a suite on the top floor of a U. S. commercial building at 30 Southland at Brighton.

The told police a man called her to her apartment and told her that he had a package for her at the front door. No one was there when she arrived, but when she returned to her suite she discovered that $9 had been taken from her pocketbook. Police believe that a confederate the man at the door secreted himself near Mrs. Toots' apartment, and stole the money when she went to get the package.

Your Grip Reveals State of Health, B. U. Savants Discover in Test

Shake hands with Dean Frederick Hand Rogers of Boston University, physical education department, and find out the state of your body.

The man who asserts that a grip test tells whether you are strong or weak, sick or well, is not a quack, he is a man of science. He is a man of science, he is a man of science, he is a man of science.

This device, long known to neurologists, makes some startling revelations, according to the dean of the physical education department. It proves that intelligent persons are usually stronger than those of their physical build who are gifted with less matter.

PROFESSORS EXCEL MEN
"Amazing, but true is the fact," said Dean Rogers, "that the human arm, according to State aid, is stronger than the average day laborer."

"It is with college professors. At the B. U. School of Education, the professors there who averaged over 50 years of age, showed a greater physical strength than the men studying in their classes."

The tests, conducted with the manometer or hand dynamometer, a little machine which fits into the palm of the hand, revealed not only the physical condition of the person, but the heretofore unknown fact that the person, as a rule, is stronger in the afternoon than in the morning.

In making these physical fitness tests, said Dean Rogers, students and professors of the university as well as thousands of school children were examined. Healthy as well as ailing individuals were also put to the test.

REVEALS FLAWS
The examinations disclosed that many of these alleged healthy persons have been found to be suffering from tuberculous, badly fractured vision, poor nutrition, and other defects. The tests also revealed the physical fitness of the ill.

The manometer has a capacity of registering 200 pounds pressure. A man capable of surprising the average grip strength in making the arrow turn in this mark must be especially virile.

Dr. J. P. H. Stanley, Boston University's new football coach, was equipped only 175 pounds, has succeeded in making the arrow turn at 180 pounds pressure, an unusual feat in Dean Rogers opinion.

CHILDREN AID JUBILEE OF CARDINAL

Thousands of children will join in an impressive tribute to His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell at an open air field near to be celebrated on his Golden Jubilee Day, Saturday, June 9, on the athletic field at Boston College.

Cardinal O'Connell will celebrate the mass in observance of the 50th anniversary of his elevation to the priesthood.

Very Rev. Rev. J. G. Gallagher, president of Boston College, will welcome the Cardinal and his entourage, and Rev. Richard J. Quinn, superior of Catholic schools, will present the greetings of the children to the distinguished jubilarian.

A speech, titled "Chosen of God," will be given by the Cardinal, who will also give a special blessing to the children at the conclusion of mass.

Papals from across all the public and parochial schools will be in attendance.

Representation for the schools of Greater Boston will be from the sixth grade upward, and for schools outside Greater Boston representation is limited to one or two pupils from each school.

Press of Mayor Mansfield's move to take county government in Massachusetts came today from the State House.

The mayor, the only elected official with courage enough to come out against county rule in a matter in the State House.

County officials have for years, through the disposal of patronage, built up a strong machine for their own political advancement. The public should assume their duty and drive them out of business.

"Of all the high elected officials," said Mayor Mansfield, "the only one of putting the county rings out of existence."

Representative Frank McFarland of Dorchester said:

"People should read what I said about county government. I think a study at this time of the subject would be a good thing."

The end of county government in Massachusetts was predicted by Mayor Mansfield in a radio address, urging taxpayers to get behind him in his efforts to save Boston from financial collapse.

His appeal, he declared, was directed not only to the people of Boston but to taxpayers from "Provincetown to Pittsfield." He appealed to all to telegraph or write their legislators to support his economy plan or "take the county government."

COUNTY RULE USURERS
Legislation will be sought next year, he warned, to put the county government, in Massachusetts, out of business. He also spoke against the refusal of employees of Suffolk County to resign as a condition of receiving salary cuts.

"The county rules are perpetuated by politics. Many heads of county departments are not even asked to resign when they are removed from their jobs."

He said he was going to get the money to restore one-third of the pay cuts for 1934. He asked, "Where am I going to find the money from 1935 to restore the full pay cut for 1934?"

O. O. McIntyre NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

Los Angeles, May 18—Once to all comes the Big Moment. I imagine it arrived for my wife's aunt at one of those big celebrity gatherings here last evening. Most of her 82 years have been spent in the serenity of the small town's shaded porch, rearing her children and her children's children.

But last night she entered the Ambassador's banquet hall, a bit of lavender and old lace on the arm of Will H. Hays to a place of honor at the most conspicuous table in the room. And at an auspicious moment was asked by none other than Will Rogers himself to take a bow before the sea of faces.

She shook hands with and was paid graceful compliments by Alvin Karpis, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Edith Piaf, John Barrymore, Lee Tracy, Louis B. O. O. McIntyre, Mabel, Paul Stone, Dolores Delaney, etc., etc.

After the star of the evening, Mrs. McIntyre, was seen in a wine-red caped creation with Joseph von Sternberg.

As casually as she saw Bob Mitchell, the drummer, she shook hands with the famous Lowell Sherman, Frank Borzage, Harold Lloyd, Jean Blondell, Wheeler and Woolsey, Myrna Loy, Verne Troybe and others drift by. At 1 a. m., on the way home she observed: "I'm a bit tired but I fear I won't sleep."

I bet she had a very good night's sleep. I bet she had a very good night's sleep. I bet she had a very good night's sleep. I bet she had a very good night's sleep.

INSURANCE OF BANK DEPOSITS AS PAISED 1934 Has Clean Slate as Far as Failures are Concerned

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Insurance of bank deposits is seen by two skilled observers of national banks as a subject on which the public has been misled. The O'Connor Committee of the House, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, indicates that he shares the views of Mr. O'Connor, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, in his statement that the insurance of bank deposits is here to stay.

From the standpoint of quick traders today called for profit taking. The special dividend was had last week and early this, all showed gains about in line with the general rally. The cancellation of advance to sell in the market was in the expectation of a lift to the 50-55 zone. This was taken place and no longer consider ourselves as long 10-15. The future may be said to have a fair degree of certainty to hold a secondary dip at least. A fair possibility new, lows will be made.

Notes: Recent Juneau is attributed to a well known source. The gold market is expected to be a fair degree of certainty to hold a secondary dip at least. A fair possibility new, lows will be made.

The proposed tariff raising powers to the President is not meeting with universal enthusiasm. For one thing some industrialists are fearful that it might result in a rise in the cost of goods. For another, they are afraid that it might result in a rise in the cost of goods.

A producer, a man rather startling thought has been started to the writer on more than one occasion this week by some industrialists are swinging around to the profit for a time in the interest of the general public. Insurance Bill Would Regulate Building Loans

By Associated Press
Washington, May 18.—Just as the nation's banks are brought under government supervision by the proposed building insurance bill would tend to bring building and loan associations under even closer regulation.

The bill provides for the insurance of savings or investments in such associations. It limits those eligible to such insurance to associations in the Federal Home Loan Bank system, which are examined by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Some eight or ten billions of savings might or many investors are concerned with building and loan associations. It limits those eligible to such insurance to associations in the Federal Home Loan Bank system, which are examined by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

There is nothing strikingly new in this proposal. It is substantially the idea presented by the American delegation to the world economic conference nearly a year ago, but with the big stabilization fund now in existence and the plan to be placed on the statute books, the regulation of the objective may be nearer.

The stabilization fund operates in complete secrecy, and might constitute considerable resistance to the plan. It is not clear what was going on, so it may be that the plan will be rapidly adopted.

In effect, it is pointed out, the plan would allow gold and silver to be used by the Federal Reserve Bank. The plan would allow gold and silver to be used by the Federal Reserve Bank.

How much silver the United States would require to accumulate to 50 percent of its total metallic stock will depend upon the gold we have at that time, how much silver is in the country, and whether the silver content of silver to gold is to be applied to all the money in the country, or only that gold applied to the metallic base.

DRAGGABLE HORRIBLE TO DO WITH FEET FIRST ROND

By Associated Press
Prestwick, Scotland, May 18.—By force of numbers as well as by individual skill, American Simon Pure has to shake him off that trails lusting players in the British amateur golf championship here next week.

Although only two native Americans, Jess Sweetser and Bobby Jones, ever have won the title, the current United States challenge, consisting as it does of all nine members of the victorious Walker cup team, as well as Jesse Guillard, ex-claiming Boston "village guru," is by no means taken lightly by British critics.

Bookmakers, in fact, have installed Johnny Goodman, American Open champion, as co-favorite with the Scot, Jack McLean, for the title won so unexpectedly a year by 36-year-old Michael Scott.

MARSTON, EGAN ON SCENE
Not far behind them in the list of odds are the eight Walker Cup players, including the two who were eliminated by the Scot in the semi-final last year, Jack Westland, Francis O'Connell, Jack Marston, Chandler Egan, Johnny Hughes, and Lawson Little.

So far only Marston and Egan of the Americans have arrived on the scene to test their mettle against the British challenge. The two veterans tramped around the course yesterday and returned identical cards of 77, four over par. The other invaders are due in today or tomorrow.

The biggest obstacle in the path to an American victory lies in the draw. Every Walker cup except Goodman is in one half of the bracket. Quimble and Morland will meet in the first round and the survivor will clash with P. H. Lister, the Cincinnati youngster, by his initial opponent, Graham Smith, and Patrick Stirling. Thus the American contingent will have at least two of its number before the third round is reached.

JONES WON AT ST. ANDREW'S
Prestwick, one of the five courses in which the championship is rotated, has been host to the tournament seven times previously since 1888 when the amateur was inaugurated.

Jones scored his victory at St. Andrew's in 1928. Holm and Sandwick were runners-up. The championship courses although the tournament has been conducted three times at Westward 26, and once at Deal.

Names New Conn. State Coach June 11
Storrs, Conn., May 18 (INS)—A new football coach will be selected to guide the athletic destinies of Connecticut's football team probably by June 11, according to announcement by President McCreckin.

Summer A. Dole, who has been head coach of the team for several years, will be relieved of his duties in that connection, and will devote all his time to his business of men at the institution.

7 College Teams in Polo Tourney
New York, May 18 (INS)—The polo tourney of Oklahoma and Missouri will have teams entered in this year's international polo championship tournament, to be contested at the Blind Brook Turf and Polo Club in Purchase, N. Y., June 8-16. It was revealed here today.

Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Army and Pennsylvania Military College are other certain entries in the year's play.

BOXING RESULTS
At Paris, France—Felix Tronzo, defeated Georges A. 'Orsatti Meanest Man in World'—Whitney
If memory isn't playing us a dirty trick, "Dizzy" and Paul Dean are for the same minor league club at the same time. Paul, two years younger than "Dizzy," began striking resemblance to his colorful brother in build and mannerisms. Here's the father of the two, and while he lacks the elder Jerome's famous control, "Dizzy" will eventually become the greater fighter.

Whitney is reported to be Brother Paul's chief weakness, but only the Braves could complain of the way he was striking the one who was winning in his first Boston appearance. He made but one out, and his control was shaky, and he was righted while his out-

Brookmeade Races Away With '34 Racing Honors

By Dave Wilson
Due largely to triumphs in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, the Brookmeade Stable is making a runaway of the race for 1934 money-winning honors. O'Connell's recent victory in the Topham Handicap at Belmont boosted the earnings of Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan's thoroughbreds to over $32,000.

Joe Jacoby, New Orleans sportsman, is the latest addition to the Detroit jockey colony. Jacoby came on from Belmont Park to ride for Marshall Lally, who has charge of the Greenlee runners.

Chase Me turned a mile and a furlong in 1:54.5 at Belmont Park in preparation for Saturday's running of the Metropolitan Handicap. The favorite was 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246, 247, 248, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282, 283, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 301, 302, 303, 304, 305, 306, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 334, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 402, 403, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410, 411, 412, 413, 414, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 423, 424, 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 445, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, 457, 458, 459, 460, 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 473, 474, 475, 476, 477, 478, 479, 480, 481, 482, 483, 484, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 502, 503, 504, 505, 506, 507, 508, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520, 521, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 534, 535, 536, 537, 538, 539, 540, 541, 542, 543, 544, 545, 546, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 560, 561, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566, 567, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 574, 575, 576, 577, 578, 579, 580, 581, 582, 583, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 597, 598, 599, 600, 601, 602, 603, 604, 605, 606, 607, 608, 609, 610, 611, 612, 613, 614, 615, 616, 617, 618, 619, 620, 621, 622, 623, 624, 625, 626, 627, 628, 629, 630, 631, 632, 633, 634, 635, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 642, 643, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 649, 650, 651, 652, 653, 654, 655, 656, 657, 658, 659, 660, 661, 662, 663, 664, 665, 666, 667, 668, 669, 670, 671, 672, 673, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 688, 689, 690, 691, 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699, 700, 701, 702, 703, 704, 705, 706, 707, 708, 709, 710, 711, 712, 713, 714, 715, 716, 717, 718, 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 724, 725, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 731, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 738, 739, 740, 741, 742, 743, 744, 745, 746, 747, 748, 749, 750, 751, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757, 758, 759, 760, 761, 762, 763, 764, 765, 766, 767, 768, 769, 770, 771, 772, 773, 774, 775, 776, 777, 778, 779, 780, 781, 782, 783, 784, 785, 786, 787, 788, 789, 790, 791, 792, 793, 794, 795, 796, 797, 798, 799, 800, 801, 802, 803, 804, 805, 806, 807, 808, 809, 810, 811, 812, 813, 814, 815, 816, 817, 818, 819, 820, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825, 826, 827, 828, 829, 830, 831, 832, 833, 834, 835, 836, 837, 838, 839, 840, 841, 842, 843, 844, 845, 846, 847, 848, 849, 850, 851, 852, 853, 854, 855, 856, 857, 858, 859, 860, 861, 862, 863, 864, 865, 866, 867, 868, 869, 870, 871, 872, 873, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 881, 882, 883, 884, 885, 886, 887, 888, 889, 890, 891, 892, 893, 894, 895, 896, 897, 898, 899, 900, 901, 902, 903, 904, 905, 906, 907, 908, 909, 910, 911, 912, 913, 914, 915, 916, 917, 918, 919, 920, 921, 922, 923, 924, 925, 926, 927, 928, 929, 930, 931, 932, 933, 934, 935, 936, 937, 938, 939, 940, 941, 942, 943, 944, 945, 946, 947, 948, 949, 950, 951, 952, 953, 954, 955, 956, 957, 958, 959, 960, 961, 962, 963, 964, 965, 966, 967, 968, 969, 970, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 976, 977, 978, 979, 980, 981, 982, 983, 984, 985, 986, 987, 988, 989, 990, 991, 992, 993, 994, 995, 996, 997, 998, 999, 1000.

Restoring Confidence Is Need of Nation

SENATOR FLETCHER's proposals to make the Federal Securities Act of 1933 workable, as passed by the Senate in the Stock Exchange Bill, should be accepted in the conference between the two Houses of Congress.

President Roosevelt, who was the prime mover for the essentially desirable truth-in-securities legislation, is understood to support the proposed amendments.

As long ago as last December, the Hearst newspapers, praising the fundamental purpose of the Securities Act, pointed out the need of revisiting certain ambiguous clauses in the law in order to bring it "into harmony with his (the President's) general objective of lifting business."

At that time, these newspapers said "we believe that simplicity and certainty could be established in certain pivotal directions by following more closely the patterns set forth in the English Companies Act."

As strong and uncompromising advocates of the reform, the Hearst newspapers recognize the desirability of clarifying amendments.

Only fanatics and impractical theorists believe that the way to end traffic congestion is to take all traffic off the streets.

UNDER the needless ambiguities of the Securities Act, new financing, which promotes job-giving recovery, has all but disappeared.

Although other factors, such as high taxation, low prices for outstanding bonds, a limited demand for capital funds by corporations of high credit standing, and monetary uncertainty, have been put out at an increasing rate, whereas industrial bonds and other issues subject to the Act have continued to decline persistently in volume.

Colonel Ayres has shown that, since the passage of the Act, exempt issues, other than those of the Federal Government, have been put out at an increasing rate, whereas industrial bonds and other issues subject to the Act have continued to decline persistently in volume.

It will be recalled that the object of the Federal Securities Act was to safeguard investors and to punish wrongdoing or negligence on the part of bankers and directors of issuing corporations.

As we pointed out last December, the Act was not intended to prevent the legitimate flow of savings into corporate channels. On the contrary, it was the original mission to Congress on the subject, President Roosevelt definitely said:

"It should give impetus to honest dealing in securities and thereby bring back public confidence."

THE FLETCHER amendments correct the errors in original drafting of the Securities Act, and make it amenable to the high purposes set forth by President Roosevelt.

The sensible drafting of this law will help to remove needless man-made barriers to recovery without sacrificing protection of the interests of thrifty investors.

Boston Banks Gain

Announcement by Carl M. Spencer, Boston bank president, that bank deposits in Boston have been mounting every month since last November, reveals a gratifying change in the trend. The stock exchange regulation measures are credited by Mr. Spencer with diverting funds from investment channels to the savings bank.

Bank deposits in the Bay State have always been closely watched by bank observers as a barometer of business. When they are on the increase it is obvious that many of our citizens are not only again making more money than they require for more living expenses but are also able to remember the good old bank book in the family budget.

New England Products

Gathering this week of more than 100 agricultural producers in conference at the Stialler with Massachusetts agricultural officials is a step in the right direction. The goal is better marketing of the products of our fields and orchards.

The parity appears to be right in line with gatherings of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, which similarly boom the products of hundreds of our manufacturing plants.

Better marketing will mean better sales. Better sales, both of farm and manufactured goods, spell better employment for workers, as well as better service to consumers. A specific suggestion is that apples and potatoes be standardized, like California oranges. Not one customer in scores today knows the differences between the several varieties of potatoes and apples, or the suitability of special varieties for special purposes.

When Husbands Stay

Experts who have studied many thousands of cases of desertion over the last 25 years say that husbands are more inclined to stay with their wives and families during a depression than during an era of prosperity.

Whatever the reason—can it be lack of carfare?—desertions decrease with hard times, and pick up again in better times.

Thus, in 1928, one of the most prosperous years in our history, desertions reached their peak. But with the crash of 1929, they went steadily down and remained at a low point until the middle of 1933. Since then they have been increasing again, and at the present rate may be expected in a few years to be back to their former high level.

Hence, we suppose, the middle of 1933 definitely be known as the "turning of the corner."

That may seem an odd way to determine the length of a depression.

But it sounds plausible, anyway—and we don't know why husbands should not be as good an index of economic conditions as car loadings.

Boston's Trade School

Ever heard of a school where the pupils have to be asked to go home because they get too interested in their studies? The Boston Trade School is such an institution. Although the hours are longer than in other schools, the teachers say the pupils are so "taken up" with carving, veneering, etc., that often they don't want to leave when the gong sounds "Session over!"

The furniture made by Boston Trade School pupils is for use in their own homes. This gives them a very practical incentive for doing good work. Only a little while ago some of our leaders expressed regret that the old line of New England cabinet makers appeared to be among the vanishing Americans. The Boston Trade School promises to make the situation right.

This Boy Could Walk Now

Nelson Harding

Quite a large and lusty infant
To be in a baby carriage
Trundled by that fussy nursemaid
In her very bossy manner.

Now, if the perambulator
With its straps and robes and blankets
Were removed, the child, unhampered,
Might be on its feet and walking!

Listen, World!

IS A MOTHER ALWAYS A CHILD'S BEST FRIEND?

I sat in court the other day and watched the child of a divorced couple taken from the father, given to the mother.

The child, a little boy of ten, cried pitiably and clung to his dad.
The mother, also sobbing, drew him
close to her.

Then, beamed
through the bars
of the court,
the old mother
beamed with her.

It was a little tough on the father, yes. He seemed a decent fellow. But of course, the child's interests came first. And, as every one knows, "a mother is a child's best friend."

A touching sight, and irreverently common. Time was when fathers had powers of life and death over their children. Now that situation—which was, of course, abominable—has been completely reversed with the advent of divorce.

In nearly every state of our union, the power of voting club women has become so great that the children of broken homes go almost automatically to the mother.

As a consequence Motherhood, instead of being a sweet and sacred service, is becoming, with rapidly increasing frequency, A SINISTER RACKET. As bludgesons for legal hold-ups. Mama's Tears have become quite as potent as Sweetie's Mawk Notes.

And rare and reckless is that judge who dares defy the fantasy of Mother Love. For if the attorneys don't get him, the lady voters will!

All of which would be perfectly proper, if it really "served the child's best interests." But does it? Is a Mother always "her child's best friend?"

I DON'T THINK SHE IS! And regardless of the indignant protest of the Electoral College,
I'm going to say my piece.

I am a mother. As a new-paper woman I have also worked with thousands of other mothers for 14 years. I have sat through countless court cases and seen the child's custody awarded to the mother AND IN THE MA-JORITY OF CASES I HAVE REGRETTED.

For, despite her shortcomings, I do believe that the average mother will be more loyal to her child, make greater sacrifices for that child, than will the father.

But I do not believe that all mothers are their children's best friends.

Nor do I believe that ardent love arbitrarily establishes a man's right to the custody of his child.

And I certainly do not believe that a woman is entitled to private and public love, education and consideration merely because she has become a mother.

The simple truth about motherhood is this—Mothers are people. They are people before they have children; possessing all the weakness and uselessness common to other human beings. There is nothing in childbirth which automatically endows a woman with strength of mind or fineness of soul.

If a woman is a fool or a tramp before she gave birth, she continues to be a fool or a tramp afterwards.

And the chances of a woman being a fool and a tramp are actually as good as the chances of a man being one. If we're equal, we're equal—with all that equality implies. We can't just pick out the frosting and give the other fellow the burnt crust!

WHY WE GIRLS use to scourge
relicious husbands and offspring into line—"Mother work down into the valley of the shadow of death"—it is high time
that someone spoke a few honest words about it.

Mama goes down into the valley, we girls wait in the room
above, all right—but not once in thousand times does she deliberately decide or even desire to do so. It just happens. And far from being a shining let alone
she is usually a most Mufusous
Marty—and doesn't let anyone else forget it.

Motherhood, at its best, or even third best, is about as fine a thing as there is in our crowded human life. But that same term
may also camouflage and endorse viciousness and stupidity.

Everything that kisses and cries isn't love.

Mother love without mother
sense isn't a blessing—it's a curse. It is a blessing when it is a brain and a backbone, and a warm mother who says, "I'd give the child to papa every time."

Why am I saying all this? Because I'm mad at Mama? Anything but. I'm saying it because,
to me, Motherhood is the greatest job on earth and should be the selves and our performance open to a lot of detestive hisses and boos.

Mother love without mother
sense isn't a blessing—it's a curse. It is a blessing when it is a brain and a backbone, and a warm mother who says, "I'd give the child to papa every
time."

Why am I saying all this? Because I'm mad at Mama? Anything but. I'm saying it because,
to me, Motherhood is the greatest job on earth and should be
the selves and our performance open
to a lot of detestive hisses and boos.

As for that sacrosanct slogan which we girls use to scourge
relicious husbands and offspring into line—"Mother work
down into the valley of the shadow of death"—it is high time
that someone spoke a few honest
words about it.

Mama goes down into the valley, we girls wait in the room
above, all right—but not once in
thousand times does she deliberately decide or even desire to do
so. It just happens. And far from being a shining let alone
she is usually a most Mufusous
Marty—and doesn't let anyone
else forget it.

Motherhood, at its best, or even
third best, is about as fine a thing as there is in our crowded
human life. But that same term
may also camouflage and endorse viciousness and stupidity.

Everything that kisses and cries isn't love.

They're leers and love you for giving them a chance to laugh at them.

Isn't that every German who uses those poor souls who can't speak about "dead" things?

Yes, there are a lot of disagreeable things in life, unpleasant, disagreeable things—why not endure them as best we may, and then forget about them as fast as we can?

No, my frank friend, I'm not at all at all.

You see, I think this world is big enough to hold all kinds of people, and I think I and I shall be on being allowed to talk as I please with whom I please, and not permit myself to be disturbed by conversation which I do not wish.

Senate Following Wise Course on League

By James T. Williams, Jr.

From an American point of view, the hearings just concluded upon the League Court protocol before the committee on foreign relations have an importance and a value hard to exaggerate.

The importance of these hearings lies in the fact that they reveal on the part of the committees of the Senate a highly intelligent and dispassionate study upon legislative proposals which involve a radical departure from traditional American foreign policy.

The value of these hearings lies in the fact that they have added new evidence concerning the nature of these proposals and thrown new light upon the intimate connection that exists between the League of Nations and the League Court.

Until the committee on foreign relations can find the time to weigh this evidence and, in its light, subject these intricate proposals to the same scrutiny that a prudent father would examine the terms of a mortgage upon the home of his wife and children, it will not be able to report them to the Senate with the recommendation worthy of the Senate's respect.

In view of the approaching adjustment of Congress, it is over-duly impossible for the members of this committee to conclude its study of these proposals and appear upon a what recommendation should be made to the Senate concerning their final disposition.

As a result, opportunity will be lost to rank with his authoritative interpretation of the Monroes Doctrine. When this becomes available to the Senate
it should be possible for any citizen to write to his senator and obtain a complete and unbiased analysis, from an American point
of view, of all the intricate parameters of the League Court proposals.

Furthermore, the new evidence now before the committee on foreign relations indicates that the court is subject to the jurisdiction of the Senate to a far greater extent than any senator hitherto had reason to suspect.

This question of jurisdiction has been the subject of recent hearings by no less an authority on American diplomacy and international law than the Honorable J. Reuben Clark, of Utah, formerly senior ambassador to Mexico.

Formulation was wisely given by Mr. Clark to the Senate to file a brief covering the League Court protocol, which is destined to rank with his authoritative interpretation of the Mon-
roes Doctrine. When this becomes available to the Senate
it should be possible for any citizen to write to his senator and
obtain a complete and unbiased
analysis, from an American point
of view, of all the intricate parameters of the League Court proposals.

It will serve the cause of truth
if the Senate, which long ago printed as public document American Diplomacy, will also print the Monroe Doctrine, which the American in the same form has not authoritative interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine.

This is what the Senate will do if it is to be a majority of its members are sincerely desirous of encouraging the plain people of the United States to mark, learn and inwardly digest
the Monroe Doctrine, which now before the committee on foreign relations.
